2.	To discuss & approve the changes to be made in FY courses, applicable from next academic year i.e. 2026-27.	1. FYBAF (Sem-I) 1. Principles of Micro Economics For the course Principles of Micro Economics (Sem I) – The repeated content of Law of Demand & Supply was removed & determination of demand curve through equation was retained. Pricing strategies were proposed to be introduced in place of market equilibrium. 2. Effective Communication (Sem – I) In Effective Communication, the objectives of communication will be included within the 'Introduction to Communication' section, rather than taught as a separate topic. Also, it was proposed to delete part of writing skills, such as letters of appointment, promotion, termination, and recommendation, as students are not expected to draft these in practice. 3. Information Technology (Sem-II) It was recommended to include PowerPoint presentations with a practical component. The Board accepted all the suggested change in the courses –

		It was noted that courses like Principles of Micro Economics fall under the Economics Board of Studies, and Effective Communication under the Department of English & Indian Languages Board. However, since these subjects are part of the Accounting & Finance curriculum, they were brought forward for discussion within the Accounting & Finance Board of Studies. All these courses were thoroughly discussed and reviewed by the Board, and will be formally ratified by the respective Board's subject experts. It was suggested by the Board that in case of changes in syllabus of existing subject, there should be no change in the course code, but the academic year from which the change is implemented should reflect in the respective course syllabus.
3.	Any other matter with the permission of the Chair.	There being no other matter, the meeting concluded with a vote of thanks to the Chair.
